

The Metabolism of Biogenic Amines in Experimental Portosystemic Encephalopathy. A Bibliographical Review

J.L. Arias, A. Alsasua¹, M.A. Aller², I. Lorente², S. Alonso², A. Begega, L.M. García-Moreno, J. Arias²

Department of Psychology, Faculty of Psychology, University of Oviedo. ¹Department of Pharmacology and ²Department of Surgery, Faculty of Medicine, Universidad Complutense, Madrid, Spain.

Address: J.L. Arias-Pérez, Departamento de Psicología, Facultad de Psicología, Universidad de Oviedo, c/Aniceto Sala s/n, 33005-Oviedo, Spain.

Metabolism of biogenic amines...
J.L. Arias et al.

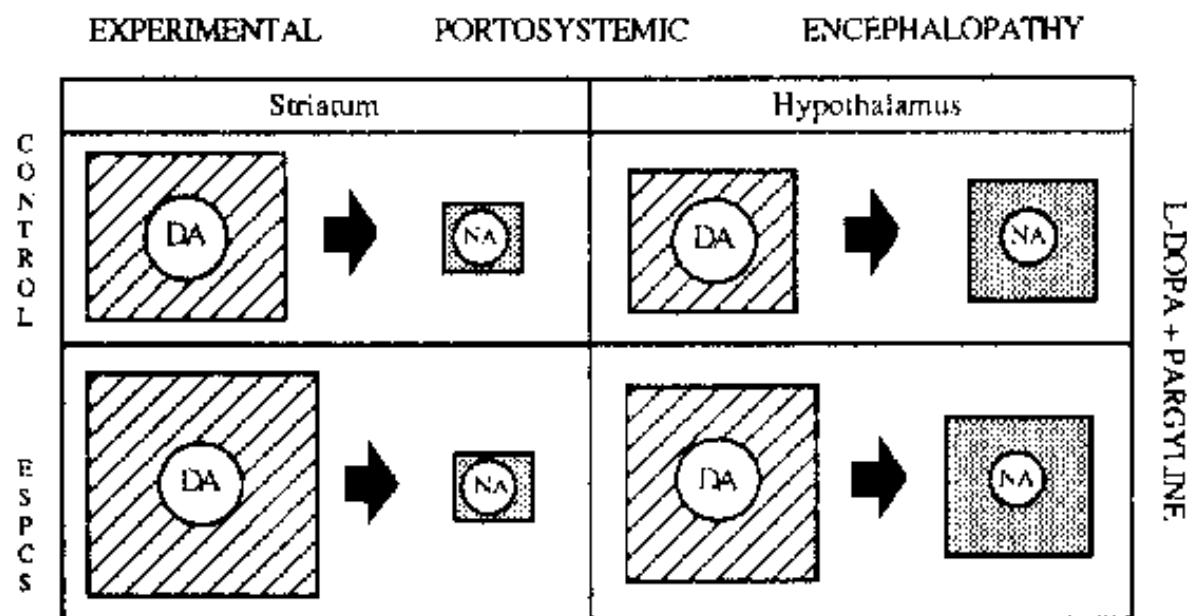

Fig. 2. Mean concentrations of dopamine (DA) and noradrenaline (NA) in controls and in rats with end-to-side portocaval shunt (ESPCS) following the administration of levodopa (L-DOPA) and pargyline.