Agree that the partnership between the EU and Africa consists of a broad set of political commitments and concrete actions that are based on a common understanding of the opportunities and challenges that migration brings and that appropriate policy responses can best be found together;

And agree to start taking the following measures within the framework of our common efforts, and where in line with national and regional policies, to address, within the framework of partnership for development, the migration phenomenon and the opportunities and challenges posed by it in the following key areas for cooperation:

1. Migration and development

- Considering how migration issues can be made an essential part of poverty reduction strategies (PRSPs) or other national development and co-development strategies of African countries;
- Agreeing that well-managed migration can have a positive development impact for countries of origin, transit and destination;
- Creating and sustaining societies where citizens, in particular the youth, can build a future;
- Considering mechanisms and channels that facilitate circular migration as well as recruitment policies that take into account the specific needs of countries of origin and destination;
- Addressing the root causes of migration and refugee flows, including through efforts aimed at eradicating poverty and realising the Millennium Development Goals and NEPAD objectives, focusing especially on improving the living conditions and livelihoods of the poorest, including resolving and preventing conflict;
- Encouraging and promoting Foreign Direct Investment in order to generate employment and reduce migration outflow;
- Effectively addressing the root causes of migration and notably the lack of employment through better targeted development policies, as well as by ensuring that policies in the area of trade, agriculture and fisheries produce a positive impact on the socio-economic situation of African countries;
- Supporting RECs and the process of regional economic cooperation and integration in Africa as one of the effective means of ensuring economic growth and combating poverty;

- Supporting, as need be, African countries to ensure intra-African freedom of movement of labour and migratory flows in the spirit of the Abuja Treaty;
- Facilitating the role of diasporas in order to contribute to the sustainable development of their countries of origin through, for example, supporting Diaspora networks and building the capacity of Diaspora organisations; enabling Africans in the Diaspora, especially those in highly technical fields and high demand, to carry out some of their professional activities in their home countries as well in the entire continent without necessarily needing to give up their employment abroad;
- Promoting equal treatment and assistance in the creation and registration of associations by migrant communities in host countries;
- Helping set up mechanisms, services and effective financial products to facilitate the transfer of remittances, to reduce the costs of these transfers and to make them conducive to development, bearing in mind the private nature of remittances;
- Working towards mutual recognition of academic qualifications and professional certificates through the conclusion of bilateral agreements or by other means;
- Ensuring implementation and follow up of the 2004 Ouagadougou Declaration and Plan of Action on Employment and Poverty Alleviation in Africa, and ensuring expert advice to and in support of ongoing developments of regional frameworks for integrated policy programmes in Africa, to address the huge unemployment problem facing most African countries and its attendant consequences of illegal migration, drug abuse, crime and other social repercussions; and emphasising the need to address issues of unemployment, particularly for youth; underlining the two key priorities for further cooperation on employment and social policy, which have a strong link with migration and development;
- Improving African access to European and regional markets inter alia by working towards agreeing Economic Partnership Agreements (EPAs) by 2008, which are instruments of development, promote poverty reduction, reinforce economic integration processes in Africa and Africa's integration in the global economy; redoubling efforts to achieve an EU-Mediterranean Free Trade Area by 2010.

2. Migration management challenges

- Finding concrete solutions to the problems posed by illegal or irregular migratory flows by regulating the influxes of migrants from Africa within the context of genuine partnership that ensures the eradication of poverty, unemployment and diseases thereby achieving comprehensive and sustainable development;

- Pursuing a holistic approach, ensuring a balanced response and concerted action in the area of migration;
- Providing assistance to African countries for the management of both South-South and South-North migratory movements;
- Developing regional initiatives appropriate to different migration routes both within Africa and from Africa to Europe, fostering close links between the respective regional organisations and deepening action as appropriate, as initiated for example by the Rabat conference;
- Addressing possibilities of generating policy coherence at international, regional and national levels, e.g. through promoting better integration of the impact of migration into development policies in respect of developing countries, and developmental aspects into migration strategies. Non-state actors at all levels should also be consulted;
- Meeting the concerns and interests of countries of origin, transit and destination alike, as well as the migrants themselves;
- Addressing illegal or irregular migratory flows, which are currently taking serious dimensions that can undermine stability and security and must be adequately addressed through a comprehensive approach;
- Creating an enabling environment in the countries of origin through good governance and the respect for the rule of law, elimination of corruption, promotion and protection of human rights.

3. Peace and security

- Agreeing that conflict is a root cause of forced displacement, and that displacement caused by conflict has destabilising effects on national and regional security, with adverse consequences for the ability of host nations to provide protection to refugees and security to their own nationals;
- Agreeing that large spontaneous and illegal or irregular migratory flows can have a significant impact on national and international stability and security, including by hindering states' abilities to exercise effective control over their borders, and creating tensions between origin, transit and destination countries in Africa and within local host communities;
- Strengthening cooperation in crisis management operations and supporting the building of Africa's capacities for conflict prevention, peaceful resolution of conflicts and post-conflict reconstruction, including through implementation of the AU Policy Framework on Post-Conflict Reconstruction and Development with special attention to the situation of women and children;

4. Human resources and brain drain

- Supporting programmes which foster the mobility and temporary return of members of the diasporas with the necessary skills in their countries of origin, in order to contribute to capacity building;

- Strengthening African educational systems and adapting them to the needs of each African country; improving the working conditions of researchers (and other teachers) and encouraging the use of local consultants for different development projects;
- Encouraging the movement of skilled African labour between host countries and countries of origin through the creation of centres of excellence and partnerships between EU and African institutions;
- Exploring options to mitigate the effects of large scale departures of highly skilled African professionals in critical sectors.

5. Concern for human rights and the well-being of the individual

- Protecting the human rights of all migrants, particularly of women and children, including through implementation and non-discriminatory application of core human rights instruments;
- Promoting the dissemination of information regarding human rights, especially for women and children;
- Recognising the usefulness of measures to fight against racism and xenophobia and the need to ensure the respect of the dignity and the protection of the rights to which migrants are entitled under the applicable international law, especially the right to equal treatment based on the principle against discrimination;
- Deepening cooperation on issues of the reciprocal integration of legal migrants and recognising the role of national and local authorities in promoting integration activities and exchange of good practices;
- Incorporating into all policies and programmes on migration and development the increasing feminisation of migration and the vulnerability of female migrants and children to exploitation and abuse in the migration process and the need to reduce this vulnerability and safeguard their human rights;
- Creating measures to prevent abusive practices and to promote decent and productive work for migrants;
- Enhancing the role of civil society, especially in promoting integration and employment and preventing discrimination.

6. Sharing best practices

- Supporting one another in capacity-building so as to better manage migration and asylum;
- Sharing information and exchanging best practices on the broad migration agenda to the fullest degree possible, in particular via meetings between the EU and the AU, and AU RECs, Commission to Commission meetings, Euro-Med Migration Cooperation and bilateral meetings between EU and African states;

- Supporting joint research on migration and development, including the collection of statistical data;
- Developing twinning arrangements and exchange of personnel between national administrations as well as between the EU and Africa.

- Discussing simplified entry procedures for specific categories of people, thus allowing smoother regular migration flows;
- Giving support to the existing initiatives that encourage regular migration and commit ourselves to provide assistance to relevant projects in countries of origin;
- Developing means of facilitating seasonal temporary migration between countries of origin and destination while taking into consideration the needs and rules of the labour markets and the protection of migrant labour;
- Assisting African states to build capacity to develop national policies on mobility and migration, including measures regarding the employment of migrants and the implementation of regional free movement arrangements;
- Cooperating in carrying out information campaigns directed towards potential migrants on legal migration and employment opportunities concretely available in the countries of destination.

8. Illegal or irregular migration

- Extending support for building institutional capacity and developing projects in countries of origin and transit to combat illegal migration, migrant smuggling and trafficking in human beings;
- Enhancing efforts to criminalise trafficking and smuggling in national legislation, to combat criminal organisations and to punish the perpetrators involved in smuggling and trafficking of human beings, as well as to offer protection and rehabilitation to the victims of trafficking in particular by implementing the relevant protocols of the UN Convention on transnational organised crime;
- Implementing the Joint Africa-EU Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Human Beings, Especially Women and Children;

- Cooperating in carrying out information campaigns, directed in particular towards the local population and youths in regions with high migration potential, on the risks and dangers of illegal migration and exploitation by trafficking networks.

9. Protection of refugees

- Ensuring effective protection for refugees and internally displaced persons, including via regional protection, implementation of relevant international and regional conventions relating to the status of refugees, and respect for the principle of non-refoulement;
- Creating favourable conditions for the voluntary return of refugees and displaced persons to their homes, including by investing in post-conflict stabilisation and reconstruction programmes, and taking into account intra-African flows;
- Ensuring those in mixed migratory flows in need of international protection are identified quickly, in co-operation with relevant international organisations;
- Ensuring due access to asylum processes, including special attention to the vulnerable groups, especially to women and unaccompanied minors.
