Karine Villette

My name is Karine, I live in the countryside of France, I worked in marketing art, visual development and concept art for the past seven years on both indie and AAA projects.

I am now mostly specializing in environmental design for video games and I'm currently working full time at Blizzard, and I also teach classes and workshops in various schools.

My workflow is a blend of traditional, digital and 3d techniques that allows me to bring complex scenes and places of epic scale to life.

I have a deep passion for cultures and worldbuilding through environments and architecture, helping me create memorable places that players will enjoy and remember.
