The Complutense University of Madrid (UCM) is the largest university in Spain and one of the most prestigious in Europe.

Its teaching and research centers are mainly on the Moncloa Campus, in the “Ciudad Universitaria”, and on the Somosaguas Campus, 8 Km. from the centre of Madrid. There are also some other buildings in the centre of Madrid.

The UCM is strategically located in Spain’s capital city, and is easy to reach from anywhere in the Community of Madrid by metro, bus and commuter train and cycle lane. In addition with links between the two campuses.
The Ciudad Universitaria was conceived in 1927 as an integrated campus, where education, science and culture would harmoniously merge with each other. The Moncloa Campus project endeavors to take the lead in responding to the challenges of the 21st century, namely knowledge and sustainable development.

The Campus includes the Faculties of Arts, Biological Sciences, Chemical Sciences, Computer Science and Engineering, Dentistry, Education – Teaching and Learning Centre, Geography and History, Geological Sciences, Language Studies, Law, Mathematical Sciences, Media & Communication Science, Medicine, Nursery, Physiotherapy and Podiatry, Pharmacy, Philosophy, Physical Sciences, Statistical Studies and Veterinary Medicine.
• Somosaguas Campus is located in the residential area of "Somosaguas" on the western outskirts of Madrid, teaching and administrative buildings are surrounded by green open spaces.

• The Campus includes the faculties of Economics and Business Administration, Political & Social Sciences, Psychology and Social Work as well as The Institute of International Studies, The Management Study Centre and a The Somosaguas Sport Centre.
In December 2009 Spain’s Ministry of Education recognized the Complutense University of Madrid (UCM) and the Technical University of Madrid (UPM) as partners in an International Campus of Excellence, Moncloa Campus.

The Moncloa Campus Project identifies six thematic clusters: Global change and new energies; Materials for the future; AgriFood and health; Innovation in health; Heritage and Sustainable mobility.
The Complutense University of Madrid traces its origins to the Estudio de Escuelas Generales de Alcalá, founded by King Sancho IV of Castille in 1293.

1499: Cardinal Cisneros founds the “Complutum”, the predecessor of today’s university, in the town of Alcalá de Henares.

1509: The University has five faculties.

1836: Under the reign of Isabel II, the university is moved to Madrid where it took the name Universidad Central.

1927: Construction begins on the Moncloa campus on land granted by King Alfonso XIII.

1970: The Central University is renamed the Complutense and the Somosaguas Campus is created.

2013: The Complutense University is now the largest university in Madrid and one of the most important universities in Spain and in Europe.

eduroam is the recommended WiFi network for all users of the UCM. Its main advantages are:

- It is a secure network, in which all the information that is transmitted is encrypted.
- It allows access to more connection services than the rest of the wireless networks deployed in the UCM.
- Mobility, thanks to the European initiative "eduroam (EDUcation ROAMing)" this network is currently available in almost all Spanish and European universities, and its presence in institutions around the world grows. Thus, any user of the UCM, who has configured the connection to this network within the UCM, can also connect when moving to the universities adhering to this initiative, authenticating in the same way as it does in the UCM, with the same credentials and without the need to carry out any additional procedures or configuration. All the information about the eduroam WiFi network is available at www.eduroam.es and www.eduroam.com, and the list of countries and entities in which this network is deployed and accessible.
- In http://ssii.ucm.es/wifi/eduroam is available all the necessary information to configure the connection to the eduroam wireless network.
