(Brief Course Description)

English-Spanish Comparative Syntax: Description (Fall semester)

An in-depth contrastive analysis of Spanish and English grammars and their syntactic forms. Attention will be placed on those areas where English speakers have the most difficulty improving written and spoken Spanish. This includes the use of explicative and specific adjectives, verb tenses, subjunctive, preterite and imperfect distinction, as well as subordinate and independent clauses. This course requires an advanced level of language proficiency.
