COLECCIONES DIPLOMÁTICAS DE LOS ESTADOS UNIDOS

UNITED STATES, DEPARTMENT OF STATE, Foreign Relations of the United States, Washington, Government printing Office, 1861-

The Foreign Relations of the United States (FRUS) is a book series published by the Office of The Historian in the United States Department of State. FRUS begins with the administration of Abraham Lincoln in 1861, and constitute the official published collection of diplomatic papers of the United States in an ongoing process to the present day. They offer a historical record of major foreign policy decisions, as well as periods of key diplomatic activity. Coverage generally lags about 30 years after the events covered, and the various official sources are carefully reviewed and as necessary material that is judged still too sensitive for release is excluded.

Prior to 1970, the series was published under various names. From 1870 to 1947, the uniform title Papers Relating to the Foreign Relations of the United States was used. From 1947 to 1969, the name was changed to Foreign Relations of the United States: Diplomatic Papers. After that date, the current name was adopted.

There are two cumulative indexes covering 1861-1899 and 1900-1918. The organization of FRUS is generally chronological, but the dates of the volumes do not necessarily reflect the dates of documentary history. For example, the volumes for 1900-1918 do not include the records dealing with World War I or the Russian Revolution. Each volume has a subject and author index. There is also typically a table of sources and abbreviations at the beginning of each volume.

Many volumes published since 1945 are available online on the State Department website that is maintained by the University of Illinois at Chicago. A full description of Foreign Relations of the United States, including a listing of the online FRUS volumes, is available from the Office of the Historian website.

COLECCIONES DIPLOMÁTICAS: FRANCIA

FRANCE. MINISTÈRE DES AFFAIRES ÉTRANGÈRES, Documents diplomatiques français.

Présenter, année par année, les documents les plus significatifs de la politique étrangère de la France et conservés par le ministère des affaires étrangères: tel est l'objet des Documents diplomatiques français (DDF).

La collection des DDF est un outil indispensable à la connaissance de l'histoire des relations internationales et de la diplomatie française au cours du XXe siècle.

Confié dès l'origine à une commission d'historiens et de diplomates, ce travail de sélection et de publication s'est attaché dans un premier temps à évoquer les origines de la guerre franco-allemande de 1870-1871 puis des deux conflits mondiaux. À partir de 1983, les travaux de la commission se sont recentrés sur la période postérieure au 21 juillet 1954, date des accords de Genève, avant de s'étendre, depuis 1992, à l'ensemble des périodes chronologiques non encore traitées (1914-1932 et 1939-1954).

La sélection de ces documents est menée d'une façon rigoureusement scientifique et en toute indépendance par des équipes de chercheurs et d'historiens sous la direction d'éminents universitaires. Pour ce faire, ces équipes ont un accès total à toutes les archives produites ou reçues par le ministère français des affaires étrangères. La sélection des documents publiés est complétée, pour en rendre la lecture plus aisée, par une table méthodique, des notes de bas de page et un index des noms de personnes

Les séries 1932-1935 et 1936-1939 ont été publiées sous la responsabilité de la Commission pour la publication des documents relatifs aux origines de la guerre 1939-1945. Les publications en cours de DDF sont placées sous la responsabilité de la Commission des archives diplomatiques.

Series de la Colección de Documentos Diplomáticos Franceses:

La colección de documentos diplomáticos franceses se organiza en series cronológicas, publicadas a lo largo de muchos años y atendiendo a criterios históricos : la primera serie trató de los orígenes de la guerra de 1870 ; la segunda de los orígenes de la Primera Guerra Mundial, la siguiente de los orígenes de la Segunda Guerra Mundial, y luego se decidió completar los huecos que habían quedado : los años de la Primera Guerra Mundial, los años veinte, los años de la Segunda Guerra Mundial, etc. Las últimas series iniciadas no se han completado aún. La lista completa de las series, delimitadas por los años que abarcan, es la siguiente:

- 1863–1870
- 1871–1914
- 1914–1919
- 1920–1932

- 1932–1935
- 1936–1939
- 1939–1944
- 1944–1954
- Depuis 1954

GREAT BRITAIN. HER MAJESTY'S STATIONERY OFFICE. WOODWARD, E. L. and BUTLER, R. (eds.), Documents on British Foreign Policy, 1919-1939, London, Her Majesty's Stationery Office, 1947-1955.

The decision to publish a collection of Documents on British Foreign Policy, 1919-39, was announced in the House of Commons by Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden on March 29, 1944, in the following terms:

'His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom have decided to publish the most important documents in the Foreign Office archives relating to British foreign policy between 1919 and 1939. The documents will be published in a series of volumes which will be issued one by one as and when they are ready. The volumes will form a continuous chronological series, but in order to make available as soon as possible documents dealing with events most relevant to the outbreak of the present war, it is proposed, for purposes of publication, to divide the work into two parts: the first part to begin with the year 1919, and the second part to begin with the year 1930. The preparation of each part will be undertaken simultaneously.'

It was decided that this collection should cover the twenty years from June 28, 1919, to September 3, 1939, from the signature of the treaty of peace with Germany at the end of the First World War to the declaration of war upon Germany by the United Kingdom at the beginning of the Second World War. The first volume therefore opens immediately after the signature of the Treaty of Versailles.

The initial volumes in each series were published in 1947. The editors, E. L. Woodward and Rohan Butler, then suggested that a third series be begun in order to accelerate the publication of the documents immediately preceding the outbreak of war (which would otherwise have formed the conclusion of the second series). The first volume in series III, covering March-July 1938, was thus published in 1949 and the ninth and final volume of documents in this series was published in 1955 (an index volume was added in 1961). Meanwhile, volumes in series I and II covering the 1920s and 1930s continued to be published until the final completion of Documents on British Foreign Policy in 1986.

The number of documents held by the Foreign Office for this period is significantly higher than for the pre-1914 era, making the selection process more complicated. Priority was given to instructions to overseas officials, reports from overseas missions on business transacted with foreign governments, records of negotiations with foreign diplomats in London, and records of the proceedings of international conferences where these had not been previously published elsewhere. Further documents were then included in order to provide background information on the context for which policy was made - typically dispatches and telegrams from British ambassadors on political and economic conditions. Documents are footnoted with brief summaries of additional documents referenced but not included in the collection.

GREAT BRITAIN. INSTITUTE OF COMMONWEALTH STUDIES, British Documents on the End of Empire, London, Her Majesty's Stationery Office, 1992-.

In 1945 Britain had over 50 formal dependencies in a colonial empire which was scattered across the world in Africa, the Caribbean, the Mediterranean, the Pacific, South-East Asia and the Far East. By the end of 1965 the total had been almost halved and by 1985 only a handful remained. Over the same period parallel changes took place in the setting of an informal empire as Britain withdrew from the Middle East, North Africa, the Arabian Peninsula and the Persian Gulf.

Based overwhelmingly on previously unpublished material from official British archives in the Public Record Office, the British Documents on the End of Empire Project (BDEEP) presents, for the first time, an extended documentary record of the final stages of Britain's association with the colonies of the formal empire and the countries within an informal empire. Established in 1987 under the auspices of the British Academy and based since its inception at the Institute of Commonwealth Studies in the University of London, BDEEP is currently one of the UK's largest and most successful historical research projects. It was described in 1996 by the British Academy as 'an outstanding academic success, a model for other Academy Research Projects both in its scholarship and management, and fully worthy of the Academy's continued endorsement.'

The project has been conceived as a sequel to the acclaimed publications of official British documents on The Transfer of Power in India and The Struggle for Independence in Burma. From the huge quantities of available official material on the empire, specialist editors have researched and selected for publication key documents which illustrate shifts in the major policy concerns of British ministers, Whitehall officials, colonial administrators, and imperial proconsuls. Editorially supported by information necessary to their ready understanding, the documents constitute an essential research aid for all those seeking a fuller understanding of British perspectives on one of the major themes in twentieth century history.

The documents chosen for publication embrace a complex variety of frequently overlapping themes. Several explore the economic, geopolitical and strategic role of the empire and the Commonwealth in the efforts made by successive British governments to maintain Britain's position as a world power in a rapidly changing international order. Others highlight important aspects of British colonial policy on such issues as economic and social development in the colonies, the evolution of government and constitutions, race relations and immigration, and the future of colonial civil services and defence forces in a period of transition from European to indigenous control. Finally there are documents which record how British governments responded to the development of political and social forces within the colonies in a process which led ultimately to self-government and independence. The documents do not in themselves provide detailed histories of political and nationalist movements in any particular territory; instead they reveal the extent to which major policy decisions in Britain were influenced by an awareness of local political situations in the colonies.

The Three Series: The project is structured into two main documentary series, together with a third support series.

Series A represents the general volumes and contains documents for successive British governments relating to the empire as a whole. Series B represents the country volumes and provides territorial studies of how, from a British government perspective, former colonies achieved their independence, and countries within an informal empire regained their autonomy. A third support series -- Series C - provides archival guides to official sources in the form of handbooks to the records of the former colonial empire, which are deposited at the Public Record Office.

The publications in the three series are described in detail on this site. Series A and C are now complete. Series B is ongoing and further volumes are in preparation on Central Africa, Fiji, Southern Africa, Malta and Cyprus.

Akten zur Deutschen Auswärtigen Politik, 1848-1945 (ADAP).

Tras la capitulación del Reich alemán, los aliados encontraron la información diplomática del régimen nazi y decidieron publicar una selección de documentos del Archivo del Ministerio Alemán de Asuntos Exteriores, a partir de 1946.

La publicación se hizo “sobre el principio de la más alta objetividad científica” para documentar las responsabilidades de los nazis en los orígenes de la Segunda Guerra Mundial y evitar polémicas como las que había suscitado la colección de la Grosse Politik, centrada en los orígenes de la Primera Guerra Mundial.

A petición propia, los franceses fueron asociados a la empresa a partir de 1947, cosa que los soviéticos no solicitaron jamás. En 1948, durante el Bloqueo de Berlín, las tres potencias occidentales trasladaron este tesoro político a Gran Bretaña.

Desde 1949 a 1945, se publicaron 65 volúmenes. Primero, los años 1933-1937 (Serie C) y 1937-1941 (Serie D), bajo la supervisión de los tres aliados occidentales. De forma paralela a la publicación alemana, apareció también la traducción en inglés (Documents on German Foreign Policy). En 1959, los Archivos diplomáticos del Reich fueron restituidos a la RFA y el Gobierno Federal de Alemania propuso a las tres potencias occidentales continuar la publicación, bajo los mismos métodos y mismas exigencias científicas, para los años 1918-1925 (Serie A), 1925-1933 (Serie B) y 1941-1945 (Serie E).

UNITED STATES. DEPARTMENT OF STATE, Documents on German Foreign Policy, 1918-1945: from the archives of the German Foreign Ministry, Washington, Government printing Office, 1949-1995.

Collection of German diplomatic documents edited by a commission composed of American, English, French, and German historians. A chronological record of German policy on the basis of documents from the foreign ministry and, in some volumes, from the chancellery, the economics ministry, and the armed forces. The documents are printed in chronological order, but each volume has an analytical table of contents which describes the documents briefly and lists them by subject. The volumes also contain biographical data, organization charts, and, on occasion, reproductions of maps that were part of the documents.
