

Jorge Arús Hita, PhD in English Linguistics (2003), has been teaching English language and linguistics at Universidad Complutense de Madrid, since 1997. His publications, using SFG as theoretical framework, include articles on corpus-based typological description, contrastive linguistics and EFL teaching in various national and international journals and edited volumes. He has been copy editor of the English-studies journal Atlantis and Associate Dean for Quality, Innovation and Technologies at the School of Philology, UCM, where he previously was e-learning coordinator.

Jorge Arús Hita has participated in several nationally and internationally funded research and innovation projects. Among his publications, he is co-author of Systemic-Functional Grammar of Spanish: a Contrastive Study with English (Bloomsbury, 2010, with Julia Lavid and Juan Rafael Zamorano), as well as co-editor of English Modality: Core, Periphery and Evidentiality (De Gruyter, 2013, with Juana Marín, and Marta Carretero), Languages for Specific Purposes in the Digital Era (Springer, 2014, with Elena Bárcena and Tim Read) and The Dynamicity of Communication below, around and above the Clause (Benjamins, 2016, with Ben Clarke). He has also co-edited the following Special Issues on Systemic Functional Linguistics: Estudios de Lingüística Sistémico-Funcional en/del español (SIGNOS 2021, with Nora Kaplan) and Dynamicity and Contrast in Systemic Functional Linguistics (Lingua 2021, with Izaskun Elorza and Tom Bartlett).