

Letras capitulares en Camera Work

Beatriz Gómez Heredero (2022).

Artículos que se publicitan en Camera Work

¿Qué incluían?

Los distintos números de la revista contenían los carteles publicitarios en sus últimas páginas. En estos carteles, por ejemplo, se publicitaba la maquinaria empleada por los fotógrafos, como “La máquina de revelado Kodak” y su precio “Kodak films $5.00 to $75.00”.

¿Cómo son los diseños?

Utilizan formas regulares y ordenadas, predomina el negro, hay un equilibrio: de la misma forma que los del Neoplasticismo pensarían en un equilibrio de la composición pictórica, los diseñadores gráficos buscaban ya un equilibrio en el medio publicitario, con paletas similares y colores básicos. Esto se verá más desarrolladamente en las revistas del movimiento Dadá: Se verá la publicidad con la misma actitud que una obra de arte.

SUBSTANTIAL RECOGNITION HAS BEEN ACCORDED THE ANSCO FILM

DAY-LIGHT LOADING

IT HAS been proven by many and repeated tests that the Anso Film has no equal in latitude of exposure and development. The chemical purity of the film-support ensures exceptional toning qualities. Under adverse conditions Anso Film will yield the highest percentage of good negatives.

ANSO FILMS are adapted for use in film-camera made under the Henslow, Jones, Anschutz, Adams, Kodak, Warner, Hawley, Rye, and Bush-Kay cameras.

Daylight Development

ANSO FILM is the only brand of film which is ready prepared in development in the McCulloch Developing Unit. It has been advertised under the trademark trade name "Kodak". All other brands must be prepared by the user, at the expense of his time and patience, and at the risk of ruining the film.

The Anso Film is ready prepared under a patented method, United States Patent No. 72,474, dated May 14, 1913, which permits both ends of the film to be attached to the black paper without the chance of the film backing and breaking in the camera.
